

collision with our friends in other States. We think it probable, that he will now decline the Maryland nomination. In justice to those who brought his name forward, he certainly ought to do so. But should he hold on, we have very little doubt that Maryland will revoke her nomination of him.—We do not see how those who approve Mr. Mangum's course can consistently support for the Vice Presidency, one who, by his own example, has given the strongest rebuke to Whig principles. North Carolina, in our opinion, should meet the Virginia heresy on her own borders, and fight it back.

So says Mangum's friend on the great Right of Instruction! But it is a hard dilemma this upon Mr. Tyler—to please his own State or to displease others. If Mangum's friends strike off Mr. Tyler from their list we beg leave, most respectfully, to recommend Mr. Leigh in his place.

THE JOURNAL:

CAMDEN, MARCH 19, 1838.

FLORIDA.

We have given in this week's paper, copious accounts of the progress of the war in Florida. It will be seen that the campaign has opened in earnest and with spirit. The Indians do not seem disposed to endeavor to keep out of the way, but on the contrary, are embodied and come out and fight with great courage. We are glad that it is so, as the consequence will be a much earlier termination of the war. The only thing to be feared was their dispersion into small parties; by which means they would be enabled to keep up a lengthened and harassing warfare, and would consequently have to be conquered in detail, when under existing circumstances they may perhaps be overcome at once.

Mr. LEIGH.—This gentleman has concluded to hold on to his seat in the Senate of the United States, and to disobey the instructions of the Legislature. He has written a long letter, setting forth his reasons for so doing. On the reading of this letter the House of Delegates, of Va ordered the printing of 185 copies, and the Senate refused to print it at all.

UNITED STATES BANK.—A Bill is before the Legislature of Ohio, which it is said will certainly pass; prohibiting the establishment of any Branch or Agency of this Bank in that State, and also prohibiting the circulation of its Notes.

The Kershaw Volunteers left Jacksonville, East Florida, on the 5th instant for St. Augustine. Letters from some of them state that they had seen horses hard times on their march, and that both horses and men were much fatigued. The writer of one letter however, which we have seen, says that they have been very much revived by the assurance given that evening, that they should have a fight in a few days at farthest. Very reviving intelligence truly: They were all well.

From the Greenville Mountain. Horrid Murder.—We are indebted to a friend for the following particulars concerning the murder of Mr. ISACC E. WOFFORD, a native of Spartanburg District, and recently a student of Medicine at this place:—

On his way home from Mississippi, Mr. WOFFORD stayed all night at Mr. Lewis Pyles', in Talladega County, Alabama, on the night of the 10th of February. He set out early next morning, and had rode about seven miles, when he suddenly discovered an Indian, about thirty yards from the road, in the act of firing at him, from behind a log. The ball missed, and a second wheeling his horse, he discovered another Indian with his piece levelled at him, which was fired immediately, and the ball entered a little to the right of his back bone, just above the hip, and passed nearly directly through him. He died next day about 10 or 11 o'clock. After he received his death-wound, and rode back about a mile, he met a young man crossing Chochole Mountain, by whose assistance, with that of another stranger they met in the road with a wagon, he got back to Mr. John O. Baccus', where he expired. As soon as possible after he was shot he sent for Mr. Pyles, with whom he had staid the night before, and gave him his money, papers, &c. with instructions where to address his friends.

We have been intimately acquainted with Mr. Wofford for the last two or three years, and can very justly say, that his unassuming and correct deportment had gained the friendship and esteem of a large circle of acquaintances in this place who deeply sympathize with his sorrowing relatives, for the sudden and unexpected loss of so promising a young man.

Fatal Accident.—A very shocking accident occurred on our Rail Road, on the morning of the 6th inst. at Blackville, and, has resulted, we regret to state, in the death of Mr. Adam Robinson, Engineer and a Fireman by the name of Hempstead, the former of whom died on Wednesday, and the latter on Thursday last. From the official report made to the President of the Company, and confirmed by Mr. Robinson himself before his death, we learn that this melancholy disaster was the consequence of neglect by the unfortunate sufferers, and by the Keeper of the Blackville Turn Out, of the precautions uniformly observed at the Turn Outs.

The La Fayette to which the accident occurred, had entered, bound down, on the straight track the evening before, and stopped; the Georgia bound up, arriving after dark had passed on the curved track, unfortunately the gates instead of being re-adjusted as they ought to have been for the La Fayette, were left as they had been placed for the passage of the Georgia. Starting at 4 o'clock, A. M. (before day-light, and contrary to rule,) the Engineer presumed that the Keeper of the Turn Out had adjusted the track, and though he had slept within a few yards of the gate, neglected to examine it himself before starting. The consequence was, that the Locomotive was suddenly checked at the gate, and Robinson and Hempstead thrown upon their knees immediately in the front of the boiler, in which situation, exposed to the flames issuing from the open fire door, they were held down by the foot-board of the Tender, for 15 or 20 minutes before they were extricated. Robinson had both his thighs broken and lacerated, and Hempstead his thigh lacerated, and they were both dreadfully burned. They received immediate Medical attendance, had their wounds dressed and were sent back, the same day to Charleston, where they have since died, after much suffering. The other fireman being upon the Tender at the time, escaped unhurt; the Engine received no material injury, and the Cars and Passengers were in no danger.—Charleston Mercury.

Extorted Testimony.—For the purpose of illustrating the secret respect which is entertained by infidels for a pure and consistent Christianity, we relate the following incidents, which have never appeared in print. They may serve to show that a testimony which under ordinary circumstances, would be studiously withheld, may, by the force of circumstances, be extorted.

In one of the flourishing towns of a distant state, resided two gentlemen of high professional standing, but of infidel principles. In habits of the closest intimacy, they encouraged each other, not only in a determined opposition to the spread of religion, but in the most profane mockery of its doctrines, institutions, and tendencies. A third individual in the town, likewise possessing influence, but of truly consistent Christian character, was the principal object of their profane jests.

They pretended to hold his religion in utter contempt, and often made merry in ridiculing his superstition and fanaticism. How sincere and hearty they were in trusting their own principles, may be learned from the sequel. In the course of time, one of them was attacked by a fatal disease, and died without any happy change in his religious views. On opening his will, it was ascertained that he had entrusted the settlement of his estate to the pious man, and that his infidel friend was not mentioned as an executor! If an action could speak, this spoke loudly of his distrust of infidel principles, and of his secret confidence in those of Christianity. He could not rely upon the honesty of his bosom companion, but he had no fear of the integrity of the man whose religion he had been accustomed to ridicule. We much mistake if every other infidel under similar circumstances, would not make a similar choice.

The other incident to which we referred, is equally corroborative of the respect which Christianity extorts from its opposers. A gentleman of our acquaintance had occasion to travel through a new and thinly settled part of the western country. His travelling companion was a gentleman of intelligence, but of infidel principles, who was fond of discussion, and ready to beguile the way, in urging arguments against the truth of the Christian religion. The sparse population of the section of country through which they were passing, was composed of rough and uncouth materials and it had been rumored that travellers had suffered fatal violence from them when thrown within their power. As regular inns were unknown our travellers were compelled to trust the hospitality of those, of whom they could not but entertain a secret fear. On one occasion as the evening closed in they sought a lodging place in a log cabin, far removed from other habitations. They anticipated but little comfort and, circumstances induced them to believe, that it would be a measure of safety for each of them to watch alternately through the night. As they were about to retire, however to their rude bed, their host whose exterior and excited their distrust, proceeding to a shelf took down an old and much worn Bible, and informing his visitors that it was his custom to worship God in his family, he read and prayed in so simple and sincere a manner as to secure the esteem of the travellers. They retired to rest, slept soundly, and thought no more of alternate watching. In the morning our acquaintance, addressing his infidel companion required him as an honest man to say whether the religious exercises of the preceding evening, had not dispelled every particle of distrust of their host's character and had not enabled him to close his eyes in the most confident security? He was evidently embarrassed by the question, but at length candidly acknowledged that the sight of the Bible had secured him a sound night's rest. Here was a testimony extorted to the excellent moral influence of the religion which he sceptically assailed.—He could not, for a moment harbor a fear of violence from one who was in the habit of bending the knee before God,—the very creation of the family altar, rendered the house a secure asylum.

THE COMPREHENSIVE ATLAS. This beautiful and interesting work from the Boston press, has just made its appearance in our town. We have turned over its maps and pages, and do not hesitate to afford it our unequalled approbation. It is a library of historical, geographical and statistical information in it.

self, executed in the very neatest style. Amidst the horde of travelling stationers now in the Southern States from the North, soliciting subscriptions for their catch-penny productions, we deem this work amply entitled to a passing notice as deserving the attention of the reading public. No gentleman's library should be without it. A copy of the work may be seen at this office.

The agent for the Life and Writings of Gen. Washington, by Jared Sparks, is also in this place soliciting subscriptions to that work. We have not had an opportunity of looking it over, but from the high character of the editor and the many commendations we see of it, among others from the late Chief Justice Marshall, we have no doubt that the publication is worthy of public patronage.
